"THE COLONEL RECOLLECTS"

The man we are going to interview today has spent a lifetime on the frontier in contact with the redman. Colonel Richard Irving Dodge has had many thrilling adventures and experiences on the great plains and in the mountains. So let us listen to what he has to say:

"The elementary instruction of the youthful Indian cannot be called drill in the military sense of that term. He is not taught to ride but being placed on a horse at the most tender age, he learns to ride as he does to walk by instinct and constant practice.

Every Indian rides after a fashion of his own, not derived from teachers but coming natural to him by constant practice and his observation of his associates and elders. A father or old man may give a youngster a few words of advice regarding the management of a special vicious horse, but as a rule, each Indian, however young, is supposed to be entirely capable of managing any horse.

An Indian boy of twelve or fifteen years of age is simply a miracle in his capacity for sticking to a horse. The older and stronger men are of course much more dexterous in the performance of all kinds of marvelous feats of horsemanship, but my experience is that a boy of fifteen is at his perfection simply as a rider.

At six, seven, or eight years old, the boys begin to be made use of by the fathers. In time of peace when there is no danger of loss except by straying, they are sent to herd the ponies. It is not at all unusual for ten of fifteen of these youngsters to find themselves out for the whole day and in sole charge of about several hundred ponies.

Each may start out in the morning and return in the evening mounted on the same old staid horse, but each has with him his "riata" and his bows and arrows. When all get together they would not be human boys if they did not have a good time. The "riata" gives them the means of catching any horse at pleasure. The speed of every horse of the entire herd is known to these little fellows better than to their fathers for every horse is caught in turn and every day witnesses a succession of horse races.

One day when I had tired myself out in a long hunt, I sat down on a bluff overlooking a somewhat extensive valley. Half a mile from me, up the stream, I saw a herd of about twenty Indian ponies which appeared to be in great commotion. Watching them intently through my glass, I found that the herder, a boy of ten or twelve, was successively roping every horse. Catching one with his lariat, he would mount him bareback, and take after another. Sometimes he would make three, four, or half a dozen casts of his lasso before roping a horse. Mounting it, he went after another, and another.

I watched him for more than half an hour. When I finally started for my camp, he was yet heartily engaged in his fun and when the boys got tired of horse racing they took their bows and practiced at marks either on foot or at speed on horseback.

At about this age, the boy begins to think of himself as a man and yearns for the position, fame, and honor of a warrior. He is given more liberty. Younger brothers or sisters take his place on the herd. He with others of the same age and aspirations, wander about the country in search of the adventure which is to crown the ambition of making an Indian boy into a warrior.

It is now the duty of the Chief to instruct the Indian boy. In time of peace there is very little drill or instruction of any kind by the chiefs or leading men. Though sometimes when there are a good many Indians, a chief may have a show drill or a grand parade of mounted men something in the nature of a review. In anticipation of war, the chief may call out his warriors for instruction every day, or at least several times a week.

There are no ranks, nor organizations, nor any units of command. Each sub-chief is surrounded by his followers in any order that they may happen to fall, but there are words of signals of command. Tactical maneuvers of Indians always suppose an enemy. Previous to the drill, the chief indicates to his command this supposed position. Sometimes it is on the open ground and at other times in the hills and ravines.

The chief now forms what may be designated his line of battle. This line consists of masses of Indians, more or less detached each from the other. Each sub-chief is surrounded by his following but all together form a line of masses faced towards the supposed position of the enemy.

At a signal the whole line will charge en masse and without order upon the supposed position of the enemy. At a word or signal it breaks or scatters like leaves before the storm. Another word or signal, a portion wheels, masses, and dashes on flank to scatter again at another signal. The plain is alive with flying circling horsemen. Sometimes single, with each lying flat on his horse or hanging to his side to escape the shots of the pursuing enemy, and sometimes joined together, they rush upon that enemy in a living mass of a charging group.

The commands of the Chief are sometimes communicated by the voice. More generally, especially when there is considerable force, signals are used. I have been told that signals can be given with a piece of looking glass held in the hollow of the hand. The reflection of the sun's rays thrown on the glass can be used to give a signal.

Once, standing on a little knoll, overlooking the valley of the South Platte, I witnessed almost at my feet a drill of about a hundred warriors. Their commander, a Sioux Chief, sat on his horse on a knoll a little way about me. For more than half an hour he directed a drill which could not be excelled by any cavalry in the world. There was no verbal commands and all I could see was an occasional movement of the right arm. He afterwards told me he had used a looking-glass.

Every writer on Indians, either of fact or fiction, has told of their use of smoke for communicating at long distances. These smokes are made singly or in groups, or to ascend into the air in different ways. To each is attached a meaning. Thus a single smoke ascending naturally means one thing and two smokes mean another thing. A small fire is built and damp grass is placed on it creating a large volume of smoke. As it begins to ascend, a blanket is held horizontally above it. When the space beneath is quite full, the blanket is slipped off sideways and then quickly brought back to its place. Smoke managed in this way ascends in round puffs like miniature clouds. One means one thing, two have a different meaning. When the signal is complete, the fire is extinguished.

With almost all Indians, a single smoke, ascending naturally is a warning to all Indians within the range of vision that there are strangers in the country. Every military command passing through an Indian country will be preceded and flanked by these signal smokes. To prevent it being mistaken for the smoke of a camp fire, it is made on the top of a high hill or on the plain. At night fires are used as signals somewhat in the same way.

Indian scouts were employed by the United States Government at almost every post in the Indian country. On the march, the leader or interpreter is kept with the commanding officer of the troops. The scouts are sent far in advance or on the flank. I learned some of these signals.

For instance, a scout rides to the top of a ridge or hill, pulls his horse, stands motionless for two or three minutes and then proceeds at a walk. He means, "All right, no signs of enemy or danger." Another will dash at full speed to the top of the hill and ride rapidly round in a circle. He means, "Danger! Get out together as quickly as possible."

The Indian will risk his life to save the body of his chief or a friend. Hence there is a drill which is particular to the Plains Indians. It is to stoop from the horse, when at full speed and pick objects from the ground. At first light objects are selected and later heavier ones are used. This is kept up until the Indian is able alone, and at full speed, to pick up from the ground and swing the body of the heaviest man across his horse.

In this drill the warriors take turns in picking and being picked up. This drill is practiced in good weather on all kinds of ground until the riders, ponies and the supposed dead and wounded are thoroughly proficient in their work. It is for this reason that in official reports of a fight with the Indians you find this statement: "Indian Loss unknown. Several were seen to fall from their horses." Forgive me if I stop now, but being an old man, I do need a rest."

THE END

LASH La RUE WESTERN

LASH LaRUE

When the people of Sunset Patch erected a solid gold statue in memory of the great general who had fought so courageously in the great War Between The States, they had no idea that the general's last stand was to be the first step in a wild and wooly adventure involving the fearless roving marshal, Lash LaRue!

The GENERAL'S LAST STAND

One afternoon, in Sunset Patch ---

THERE'S THE SOLID GOLD STATUE OF THE GENERAL, JUST LIKE I TOLD YUH, SUTTER!

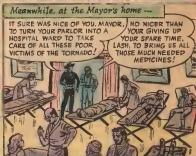

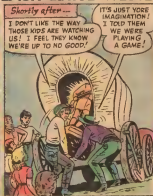

I SEE IT, BRUSH! BUT WHAT MAKES YUH THINK WE COULD GET AWAY WITH IT!

EVER SINCE THE TORNADO KNOCKED ALL THE BUILDINGS DOWN ON THIS STREET, THERE'S BEEN NO ONE AROUND BUT THOSE KIDS! ALL WE HAVE TO DO, SUTTER, IS DIG UP ITS FOUNDATION AND THEN CART IT OFF!

LASH La RUE WESTERN

OF COURSE, THE GENERAL ISN'T HERE! EVEN A LITTLE BOY LIKE YOU SHOULD KNOW THAT A STATUE CAN'T WALK!

BUT IT DIDN'T HAVE TO WALK! THOSE MEN CARRIED IT OFF AND SAID THEY WOULD GIVE THE FIRST ONE WHO FOUND IT CANDY!

IT MIGHT BE JUST THE BOY'S IMAGINATION, BUT I THINK WE'D BETTER HAVE A LOOK!

A STATUE ANYONE?

LASH La RUE WESTERN

Seconds later ---

AND AS I WAS CLOSING MY EYES TO COUNT, I SAW THEM RIDING OFF THAT WAY!

I'VE COME ACROSS MANY STRANGE ROBBERIES IN MY TIME, BUT THIS IS THE STRANGEST -- STEALING A GOLD STATUE!

ONE THING'S SURE, THEY COULDN'T GO FAR WITH A SOLID GOLD STATUE! I'M GOING TO SEE IF I CAN PICK UP THE WAGON'S TRAIL!

FINE, LASH! IN THE MEANWHILE, I'M GOING TO ROUND UP A POSSE AND CLOSE OFF ALL THE POSSIBLE ROUTES OUT OF TOWN!

Meanwhile ---

THE AXLE'S GONE, ALL RIGHT!

THE WEIGHT OF THAT STATUE DID IT! NOW WHAT? BY NOW THE WHOLE TOWN'S PROBABLY LOOKING FOR IT!

WE'LL JUST HAVE TO HIDE IT SOME PLACE UNTIL WE CAN GET A NEW WAGON!

THAT'S EASIER SAID THAN DONE! WHERE DO YUN EXPECT TO FIND A PLACE TO HIDE A SOLID GOLD STATUE?

WE COULD LOWER IT DOWN THAT WELL ON THIS RANCH! NO ONE WOULD EVER THINK OF LOOKING FER IT THERE! NOW COME ON! GIVE ME A HAND MOVING IT BEFORE SOMEONE COMES ALONG!

Shortly after ---

TO THE ROPE AS WE LET IT DOWN! WHEN WE'VE LET IT DOWN FAR ENOUGH, WE CAN TIE THIS END OF THE ROPE TO THE WELL!

OKAY, NOW, HOLD TIGHT!

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE RANCHER COMES TO GET SOME WATER?

WE'LL THINK ABOUT THAT WHEN IT HAPPENS!

THEN YOU'D BETTER START THINKING, PRONTO! HERE COMES THE OWNER NOW!

I DIDN'T SEE WHAT YUN WERE PUTTING DOWN THE WELL, BUT WHATEVER IT WAS, YUN PULL IT RIGHT UP AND TAKE IT! YUN TALK AND YOUNGUNS OES MY PROPERTY!

YUN TALK TOO MUCH FER AN OLD MAN AND ---

real crazy!!! A liquid solid! Amazing and fun! Roll into a ball, it bounces! Hit with hammer — it shatters! Pull it slowly — it stretches! Press it on a comic book and it steals a perfect impression in color... Leave it alone and it sinks into a fired little puddle. Comes in a leakproof plastic egg... You'll relax with this one — and really have a ball.

It is made of the wonder material your parents have read about in Life, Time, and other magazines. Truly a great new toy. This is the real THING.

Morrisy tells you what you can do about it - and FAST
- right in the heart

Take a good honest look at yourself. Are you proud of your body or are you satisfied to go through life being just "half the man" you could be?

NO MATTER how advanced of your present physical condition you may be—how old or young you are—you have the DORMANT muscle power in your God-given body to be a real HE-MAN. Believe me, I know because I was once a 90-pound HALF-ALIVE weakling. People laughed at my build . . . I was ashamed to strip for sports . . . shy of girls . . . afraid of con-

Then I discovered the secret that changed me into "The World's Most Perfectly Developed Man." The secret I have shared with thousands of fellows like you to turn them into marvelous physical specimens...REAL MEN have based on real

Alle Sekretariate bitten, München 1957

My Secret—"Dynamic Tension"—will turn the trick for you FAST! It's the NATURAL easy method you can practice right in the privacy of your own room—JUST 15 MINUTES EACH DAY - while your scrawny chest and shoulder muscles swell as big they almost split your chest cavity . . . You get sludge burner fats, a bettering iron punch . . . ridges of solid stomach muscle . . . mighty legs that power you!

NO theory. No gadgets or contraptions. When you develop your strength through "Extreme Tension," you gain length at critical muscle markers. You simply use the SLIDING machine as your own body moved unconsciously every minute of the day—while you breathe, eat, sit—watch it increase and trail. Light until you're covered with a thousand tons of beautiful, SOLE MUSCLE. You're a man. BE MAN.
